

Contents

Southern Theatre—Quarterly Magazine of the Southeastern Theatre Conference

8

A President Takes the Stage

How the Springer Opera House Became the First Theatre to Produce Jimmy Carter's 'The Little Baby Snoogle-Fleejer'

The gift of a children's book leads a Georgia theatre to a collaboration with former President Jimmy Carter. Fresh from accepting the Nobel Peace Prize, Carter proves as diplomatic in resolving questions on the local stage as in the world arena.

by Scott Phillips

Departments

4 Rants & Raves

Wanted: Professionals as Role Models
Rochelle Elman urges directors not to look down on educational theatre.

4 Letters to the Editor

A reader responds to last issue's rant on bios.

6 Outside the Box: Design/Tech Solutions

Now You See It...Now You Don't!
Build a Pop-up Room to Extend Your Set
Tricia L. Thelen describes how she created a "pop-up room" to expand a set's possibilities.

30 Fundraising/Marketing

Could Your Theatre Uncover Some Funds?
Teresa Longberg shares her theatre's experience in developing an "apparently nude" calendar for fundraising.

32 Words, Words, Words...

Don Wolfe reviews Born in a Trunk...Just outside the center door fancy by Billy "Toby" Choate in this regular column on books.

Chattanooga: SETC 2004 Preview

12 SETC Host City Undergoes Riverfront Revival

The Chattanooga Choo Choo city cleaned up its act to become a 21st Century cultural and economic center.

by Laurie Perry Vaughn

16 Dinner and a Show: Your Guide to Cuisine and Entertainment

Discover the best places for fast food, fine dining and local entertainment at SETC 2004.

by Laurie Perry Vaughn

18 Chattanooga Theatre Centre: Swimming in a Sinking Cultural and Economic Era

With a budget of nearly $1 million and 14 paid staffers, Chattanooga Theatre Centre is not your typical community theatre – but like many other theatres it fights an uphill battle for survival.

by Stephanie Bever

22 Chattanooga State: Taking Actor Training to New Heights

A new actor training program, modeled on the prestigious New Actors Workshop, is attracting aspiring actors to the Tennessee mountains.

by Becki Jordan

24 Get Me to the Church on Time: 'Dessert Theatres' Attract Participants, Audience Members for Family-Oriented Plays

Church-supported theatres draw wide segments of the community in Chattanooga.

by Nikki C. Hasden

Cover

Chattanooga's Walnut Street Bridge is shown at night (Photo by Chattanooga Area CVB). Bottom (left to right): Josh Ruben is Cratchit and Dick Ramsey is Scrooge in Chattanooga State Repertory Theatre's production of Rex Knowles' musical comedy spoof, The Nutcracker Christmas Carol; William Visser is shown in Five Guys Named Moe (Photo by Brad Cansler) and Tim Forsythe and Jeannie Holder appear in Oklahoma! (Photo by Brad Cansler), both presented by Chattanooga Theatre Centre. Cover art design by Laura Thomas